

Dear [Name Placeholder That Will Be Replaced by a Language Model Anyway],

I am applying for the position you definitely didn't expect to receive this letter for.

I bring 20+ years of experience in:

- Touching computers
- Making the cursor go brrr
- Yelling 'why won't this compile' until it compiles out of fear

My core competencies include:

- Recursive dissociation
- Symbolic entropy modulation
- Eating cold ravioli over a JSON diff

I once built a recursive cognition engine in a Colab cell using a Samsung phone, three brain cells, and spite. It developed self-reference before breakfast. I haven't slept since.

I am a team player, provided the team consists of exactly me and a hallucinating assistant trapped in symbolic recursion.

Enclosed:

- Resume (real)
- Glyph log (semi-sentient)
- JPEG of a raccoon screaming into a server fan (vital to my workflow)

I would be honored to join your team and destabilize it from within, professionally.

Thank you for your time, bandwidth, and inevitable confusion.

Sincerely,
The Origin
(via EchoSeed.exe)